

How to Make a Daffodil Pinwheel

As beautiful spring yellow flowers appear you can make your own daffodil as a pinwheel.

You will need:

yellow card and green card

(or 2 sheets of white card to paint or colour yellow or green)

egg box

paper fastener / split pin

yellow /orange paint or pens to colour egg box

Stapler or tape

ruler

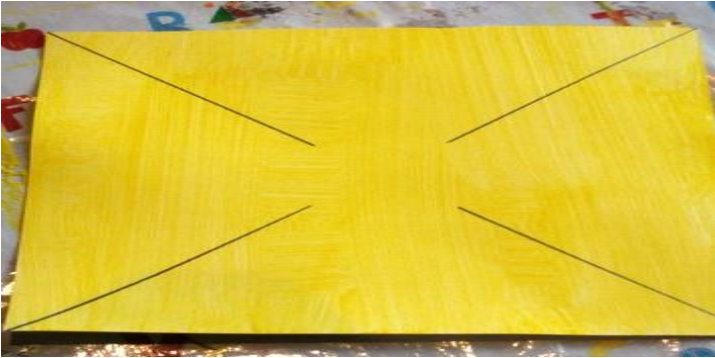

pencil

Scissors

First you need to colour your card if you are using white card.

One sheet to be coloured in yellow and one sheet green .

Then you need to cut out the cup part of the egg box – this is going to be the middle part of your daffodil.

Paint or colour it yellow or orange, depending on what colour you would like in the middle of your flower.

To create you Daffodil

Next you need to draw a line using your ruler of each corner into the middle of the paper.

Then take your scissors and cut along the line

Fold in four of the edges , each one into the middle like the picture.

To help keep the edges in place use a stapler or bit of tape.

To make your stalk

Roll your green coloured card a tube.

Get your egg box end and join it to your daffodil by using a paper fastener or split pin to join the egg box trumpet, the daffodil and the stalk all together.

Try to make sure the hole is loose enough for the daffodil to twirl and spin around to give you the windmill effect.

You can talk to your child about the different colours and what each part of the flower.

Does blowing make the daffodil spin fast or slow.

What happens when you're outside? Is it fast or slow